3RD DISTRICT RACE MAY BE MOST EXPENSIVE LEGISLATIVE RACE IN US HISTORY; OVERALL LEGISLATIVE INDEPENDENT SPENDING SOARS TO NEW RECORD¹

Driven skyward by what appears to be the most expensive legislative campaign in American history, independent spending in legislative races reached a new record in 2017, according to reports filed with the New Jersey Election Law Enforcement Commission.

An estimated $19.8 million was spent by independent groups just in the third legislative district, with the total cost reaching about $24.1 million when candidate spending is included. Data provided by the National Institute on Money in State Politics indicates this may be the most money ever spent in a single legislative district throughout the United States.

*Illinois House GOP Leader Jim Durkin raised $19.4 million in 2016 election but gave $18.5 million to other candidates or parties. Non-New Jersey candidate totals are contributions and were provided by the National Institute on Money in Politics.

“As independent special interest groups rapidly expand their influence over elections, spending records seem to be falling by the wayside almost every election cycle,” said Jeff Brindle, ELEC’s Executive Director. “The amount spent on the third legislative district alone this year is staggering. It is more than most past gubernatorial candidates have spent statewide.”

¹ For full update, see “White Paper No. 28- Legislative Election 2017: The Mother of All NJ Legislative Races” at www.elec.nj.gov/aboutelec/whitepapers.htm.

“We urge both parties to adopt ELEC-recommended legislation that would require independent spenders to fully disclose their fund-raising and spending in New Jersey campaigns,” he added.

Independent spending totaled $26.5 million in the general election and $727,746 in the primary for a grand sum of $27.3 million. That is nearly 52 percent more than the previous record of $16.1 million in the 2013 election year.

Reports that reflect campaign finance activity through April 2018 show legislative candidates have raised and spent $44.1 million. Overall spending in the general election, including independent committees, totals $70.7 million.

Largely due to its involvement in the 3rd district race, General Majority PAC, a 527 political organization, topped all independent spenders in this year's legislative elections at $8.4 million.

Another group heavily involved in the same race, Garden State Forward, a 527 political organization run by the New Jersey Education Association, spent about $6.7 million and took the number two spot.

*Primary total is $2,160,922 if it included $1,433,177 spent on Third District Senate race during the primary months. However, since neither the Democratic and Republican Third District Senate candidate had a primary opponent, they essentially were engaged in one long general election. So the $1,433,177 is included in the general election legislative independent spending total.

An estimated one of three dollars spent on the 2017 legislative election poured into the third legislative district.

Another indication of the extraordinary scope of spending in the district is that media spending alone totaled at least $7.6 million, according to Advertising Analytics, an advertising tracking service.

The 3rd district media buy alone- $8.6 million- is more than the previous state record for a legislative district- the $6.1 million campaign in 2003 between Democratic Senator Fred Madden (D-4th) and Republican George Geist. (In current dollars, it cost $8.2 million).
